

Whether you are determined to get more exercise or spend more time relaxing in 2006, TETON CLUB in Jackson Hole will help you hold fast to your New Year's resolutions. This rustic hideaway specializes in giving its members the opportunity to enjoy five-star services and exciting recreation with two-week to three-month fractional ownership offerings ($34,000 to $500,000 apiece with exchange privileges available at affiliated resorts).

Thirty-seven luxury condominium residences nestle along the snowcapped mountainside, which is where the real fun takes place. "Winters are terrific here," says Diane Peterson, marketing consultant for Teton Club. "There is incredible, [dry] powder for snowmobiling, snowshoeing, cross-country skiing. . .quite a variety." Children can get in on the chilly action as well, thanks to a 5,000-sq.-ft. Kid's Ranch that tenders ski lessons and other tyke-type fun.

When the snowfall is replaced by sunshine, there's still plenty to do. Wyoming's warmer months make room for outdoor adventure—hiking, fishing, camping and more—in Yellowstone National Park. At Teton Pines Resort and Country Club, Grand Teton members can commune with nature with the benefit of reserved tee times and no green fees.

Prefer spa time to skiing, golfing or fishing? Check out the nourishing Indian Sunset Body Wrap and Sweet Mango Ginger Brown Sugar Scrub, two of the treatments on offer at the Hollee Armstrong Spa. Afterward, you can show off your skin's newly pampered glow by heading to the heart of Jackson Hole for an evening of world-class dining, shopping and fine art. 307.734.0745, WWW.TETONCLUB.COM. —MW.
